David Carson (born September 8, 1955) is an American graphic designer, art director and surfer. He is best known for his innovative magazine design, and use of experimental typography. He was the art director for the magazine Ray Gun, in which he employed much of the typographic and layout approach for which he is known. In particular, his widely imitated aesthetic defined the so-called "grunge ...

Graphics (from Greek γράφω, graphō, graphikos) are visual statements committed to a surface, such as a wall, a canvas, pottery, a computer screen, paper, stone, even to the landscape itself. The term "graphics" relates to the creation of signs, charts, logos, graphs, drawings, line art, symbols, geometric designs and so on. Graphic design is the art or profession of combining text, pictures ...

- [Man] At it's core, graphic design is really combining words, shapes, form, and color to communicate an idea. When I started out in school, I thought graphic design was about layout, and I thought great, I get to put some nice typography with some nice images and move them around on a page, and I love doing that, but the turning point with me, was when I first got into art school and one of ...
